Dear Hiring Manager,

I am excited to submit my application for the Frontend Developer position at [Company's Name]. With a robust background in both front-end and back-end technologies and over one year of practical experience in building user-friendly web applications, I am confident that my skills and experiences align well with the needs and vision of your company. My professional journey has been driven by a dedication to continuous learning and an eagerness to work in a collaborative team environment.

In my recent projects, I have focused extensively on front-end development using HTML, CSS (including preprocessors like Tailwind CSS), JavaScript, and React. I have successfully built Progressive Web Applications (PWAs) that offer seamless user experiences across devices. My proficiency with TypeScript has further enabled me to write more structured and maintainable code. I am excited about the possibility of leveraging these skills to contribute to [Company's Name]'s innovative projects.

My background in managing and operating businesses has honed my problem-solving abilities and leadership skills. As the owner and operator of Miracle Signs and Designs, I managed multiple employees and ensured the highest quality in production outputs. Transitioning from a technical support role at Verizon to owning and running several successful ventures taught me to prioritize customer needs and maintain robust client relations – attributes that I believe are critical for a role at your esteemed company.

I hold an Associate of Arts from SJRCC and a Bachelor of Science from UNF, providing me with a solid academic foundation. I have recently completed a technical course with Frontend Simplified, which has sharpened my front-end development skill set further. My knowledge of DevOps tools like Git, GitHub, Bitbucket, Webpack, and Vite ensures that I am capable of contributing to both collaborative and independent projects effectively.

Given my technical proficiency and rich experience in customer relations and management, I am eager to bring my robust work ethic and innovative ideas to [Company's Name]. I am enthusiastic about the opportunity to work at a forward-thinking company and am confident that I can contribute positively to your team. Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to the possibility of discussing my application in greater detail.

Sincerely,
Paul Miracle
